

Celebrating a birthday

This month (March 2007) marks the first birthday of this website and I want to thank all the advertisers who have helped support the site and all the runners and others who have visited the site. I don't know whether to celebrate with a cake or pop the top on something. With the continued support of advertisers and race directors, it allows me to continue the site and therefore cover much of the Metroplex road-race scene.

So, I'm looking forward to a better year and doing more coverage to help supplement other running sources.

Also, I encourage anyone to submit reports and pictures on road races or other running news. By making this more of an interactive site makes it more interesting. Thanks to those who have submitted reports and pictures throughout the year. Among those who have contributed are Fiona Green, Clint Bell, Stan Bell, MaryLou VandeRiet, Frank McGinty and Calvin McGill.

Also, thanks to the many, many runners who have e-mailed their thanks for the coverage. Many have spread the word about the site to other runners, and the readership increases every week.

The purpose of the site is to cover many of the events that aren't covered by the local media. I'll go to big or small events. I have no set schedule, though I will tend to cover those races that advertise on this site. I want to support them, too.

Also, I encourage anyone to submit any suggestions or ideas that might help make this site better. And I will be coming up with new stuff throughout the year.

So, thanks for visiting the site and continue to visit because I update it throughout the week.
